What we are passionate about

An exploration of the fantastic possibilities of our social commitments

International Youth exchange April 21st 2011 to May 5th 2011 in Hannover

Are you interested in...

- actions in public space
- theatre
- art
- creative working processes
- political debates
- meeting people from different countries
- getting to know different perspectives
- coming to Hannover for two weeks

We are looking for people age 18 to 25 interested in being project partners for an international youth exchange.

2011 is the European year of voluntary actions and we are interested in the values young people from different societies are referring to today and which they want to get engaged for.

In two weeks of creative workshops we are going to ask ourselves and each other what we do, could or should commit ourselves to. Not only will the participants think about these questions but we will also get the local inhabitants involved. We will go out into the city centre of Hannover with the scenes, installations and performances we have developed in our workshops and address a random audience. Two workshop leaders with pedagogical experience, coming from different artistic backgrounds (art, theatre, performance) will – together with the participants – examine these lead questions by working with it in different artistic ways. There will be a final presentation of the results from the workshops in the cultural centre of Pavillon (www.pavillon-hannover.de).

We are looking for open-minded young people age 18 to 25, from Bosnia, Russia, Greece and Hannover/Germany who would like to take part in this adventure.

The language spoken in seminars and workshops will be English.

The participation fee is 50 Euro per Person (including accommodation and meals).

Participants will have to cover 30 per cent of their traveling costs, the rest will be refunded.

Here you find the requirements of the program 'Youth in action' where I will apply for money:
